6 March 2018

Carnarvon is pleased to invite current and prospective shareholders to an open information day. The Carnarvon team will make themselves available to talk through each of Carnarvon's projects and answer questions shareholders may have. Carnarvon's ASX announcements and corporate presentations will form the basis of a number of visual aids to assist with the interactive open day.

Current and prospective investors are encouraged to meet the team and learn more about Carnarvon's upcoming activities within its existing portfolio. The event will be held throughout the day to provide flexibility to attendees and will be held in a casual setting.

DownUnder GeoSolutions will also have members of their team available to discuss their diverse range of innovative geosciences software, products and services – of which many of these have played a significant part in Carnarvon's asset portfolio.
